A Message from the AMSA President
Daphne C. Watkins

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the 25th Annual Interdisciplinary Conference of the American Men’s Studies Association (AMSA).

Compared to other organizations, particularly those that are more discipline-specific, AMSA has not been around very long. However, as I reflect on the accomplishments that the organization has had over the years, I am proud to call AMSA my interdisciplinary home. There is so much for us to be proud of as an organization. When our founders conceived an interdisciplinary group of scholars, activists, students, and practitioners who would hone the critical study of men and masculinities twenty-five years ago, I would imagine that they were thinking of you and your passion for improving the world’s understanding of boys and men. Your presence here at our 25th Annual Conference speaks volumes. It means that you not only believe in the mission and vision of the organization, but that you are willing to be at the front lines. When I joined AMSA a decade ago, it was because I did not want to limit myself to the possibilities that lie in understanding my work with men exclusively from the perspective of one discipline. Instead, I wanted to maximize my understanding and passion for helping men, particularly men of color, from a multitude of disciplines. Gleaming pearls of wisdom from each discipline would allow my work to not only be impactful, but life changing. I imagine that you share my passion for the critical study of men and masculinities and my desire to make a difference.

In our current political climate, it will be important for us to maintain our front line position. I see this conference as a way for us to do just that. We are not here this weekend to celebrate the end of our 25 years of work, but rather the beginning of our next 25-year commitment to developing the critical studies of men and masculinities globally and through the advancement of our feminist-inspired scholarship. As an organization, AMSA’s goal is to provide a forum for teachers, researchers, students, artists, and practitioners to collaborate and support one another in a mutually empowering environment. These values are reflected in this conference, as well as in our scholarship, and most importantly in you... all of you.

So keep this in mind as you participate in our plenaries, concurrent sessions, and interact with others who are here with you, at the front lines. Welcome to AMSA, and the beginning of our future.

Mission Statement

The American Men’s Studies Association advances the critical study of men and masculinities by encouraging the development of teaching, research, and clinical practice in the field of men’s studies.

AMSA provides a forum for teachers, researchers, students, and practitioners to exchange information and to gain support for work on men and masculinities.

THE AMSA BOARD AFFIRMS THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS ABOUT THE ORGANIZATION AND THE FIELD OF MEN’S STUDIES:

- Men’s studies includes scholarly, clinical, and activist endeavors engaging men and masculinities as social-historical-cultural constructions reflexively embedded in the material and bodily realities of men’s and women’s lives.
- AMSA is multidisciplinary in nature and committed to disseminating new knowledge about men and masculinities to a broad audience.
- AMSA seeks the participation and membership of all men and women irrespective of race, class, ethnicity, sexual orientation, physical abilities, nationality, or religious identity.
- AMSA is committed to excellence, inclusiveness, and ethical behavior in men’s studies research, publication, teaching, and practice.
- AMSA strongly encourages student participation and membership, offering scholarship and mentoring opportunities for young scholars in the field.

AMSA values and encourages mutually empowering scholarly and professional relationships that are generative, empowering, and affirming in nature.
A Message from the AMSA Conference Chairs
Jan Deeds & Mark Justad

Welcome to Ann Arbor and AMSA’s 25th anniversary celebration! It seemed only fitting to hold this year’s conference at our institutional “home”, the University of Michigan School of Social Work (UM-SSW). Building this relationship with UM-SSW has provided an important source of support for AMSA and established men’s studies as an important field of study at this institution.

As we celebrate this quarter century milestone we focus this conference on exploring what has been accomplished and to ask “What’s next?” for the interdisciplinary and critical study of men and masculinities. To reflect our theme of “Honoring our history, imagining our future”, several “25 years of” panels will feature scholars from diverse backgrounds and generations to discuss how thinking on men and masculinities has changed on topics such as education, violence, men’s health. Preconference workshops on Thursday allow participants to focus on publishing, teaching, or relationships, followed by our opening session, a panel discussion of 25 years of Men’s Studies.

Reflecting AMSA’s multidisciplinary approach to the critical study of men and masculinities, this year we have invited Jericho Brown to be our poet in residence, and Chris Haywood to deliver the Sam Femiano Keynote Lecture in Men’s Studies. Dr. Brown will teach two workshop sessions for AMSA writers to polish their creative works, and present “An Evening with Jericho Brown” on Saturday night featuring his award winning poetry.

Dr. Haywood’s keynote lecture is titled, “Challenging Connections: Thinking through men, masculinity and the values of AMSA.” This lecture focuses on making connections between the values held by AMSA and our engagement with men and masculinity in academic and professional contexts. Drawing from examples in his research on masculinity including education and schooling, Islamophobia and ethnicity and anonymous sex seeking, Chris will focus on key challenges in making such connections. Dr. Haywood will suggest future directions for AMSA and the study of men and masculinities in light of our history to this point.
Beginning Friday morning and going through Sunday noon scholars and activists from around the world will present panels, workshops and papers from a variety of disciplines and perspectives. Opportunities to meet new colleagues and become more engaged in AMSA’s work happen throughout the conference. Join the AMSA Board of Directors for a box lunch on Friday, and enjoy discussions about the many ways you can become more involved with and influence AMSA’s work. Before the Friday night dinner all students are invited to a special welcome, hosted by students from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Hampden Sydney College, and international participants are invited to a welcome hosted by Danielle Nahon and Alvaro Ojalvo.

This conference would not have been possible without the assistance of the Conference Planning and the Frankel Scholarship Selection Committees: Jonathan Allan, Jeff Cohen, Mark Geisler, Alex Hines, Alvaro Ojalvo, Don Conway-Long, and Vicki Sommer. Special thanks to the 25 year panel organizers, Jamie Mitchell, Robert Heasley, Elizabeth Deis, and Cliff Leek. AMSA President Daphne Watkins provided valuable guidance, and our office support staff, Administrative Assistant Aesha Mustafa and work-study Anna Shires were truly the backbone of this conference.

We genuinely value your participation in this conference and in all of AMSA’s work. We know for many AMSA members this conference feels like a homecoming, so if this is your first conference, welcome, and if it’s one of many, welcome home!

2017 Conference Keynote Address
& Femiano Lecture in Men’s Studies*

Friday, March 31, 2016, 7 – 9:00 pm, Ross School of Business, Executive Center, Colloquium Room, 6th Floor

“Challenging Connections: Thinking through men, masculinity and the values of AMSA”

Dr. Chris Haywood, Director of Research for the School of Arts and Culture, Newcastle University

The Sam Femiano Keynote lecture for the 25th Anniversary of the American Men’s Studies Association provides an opportunity to use the spirit embedded in the history of the organization to speak to our current and future explorations of men and masculinity. This keynote focuses on making connections between the values held by AMSA and our engagement with men and masculinity in academic and professional contexts. Drawing from examples in my own research on masculinity including education and schooling, Islamophobia and ethnicity and anonymous sex seeking, I focus on three key challenges in making such connections. These are the significance of active listening to those we work with; the centrality of social context in developing our understanding; and importance of going beyond the limits of what we are able to know. Despite (or because of) its diverse disciplinary and professional heritage, Men and Masculinity Studies has emerged as an active vibrant voice in the academy and broader social and cultural spheres. I am therefore suggesting that in order to sustain our current and future academic vitality, it is important to continue to reflect on past imaginings and re-engage them, as part of a constant renewal of what we know and what we are able to know about men and masculinity.

*Sam Femiano (1932-2009) was a founding member of AMSA and a mentor and friend to the Board and to those entering the field of Men’s Studies. As a therapist, Sam was a passionate supporter of developing a critical social discourse on men and masculinity. He served two terms as AMSA President and two terms as AMSA Treasurer & Secretary. He also held a seat as an elected member of the AMSA Board of Directors from 1991-2009. Sam contributed immeasurably to the development of AMSA and to its efforts to develop and sustain the critical study of men and masculinities in a rigorous, open-minded, inclusive and mutually supportive manner. This fund is established in honor of Sam and stands as a memorial for Sam and other individuals making significant contributions to the work of the American Men’s Studies Association.

The Samuel Femiano Men’s Studies Lecture Fund is an endowment created to support an invited Men’s Studies plenary lecture each year at AMSA’s Annual Conference. Individuals are invited to contribute to this fund that has raised approximately 60% of its $20,000 goal. Gifts may be given by clicking on the Contribute button on the AMSA web page. The individual invited to deliver the Femiano Lecture in Men’s Studies is selected by the AMSA President in consultation with the Program Committee and is chosen because he or she is a scholar, teacher, author, clinician or practitioner whose work contributes substantially to the field of Men’s Studies.
2017 AMSA Conference Poet in Residence

Saturday, April 1, 2017, 7:15 – 9:00 pm, Michigan Union, Kuenzel Room

“An Evening with Jericho Brown”

Jericho Brown, Acclaimed Poet & American Book Award Winner

Jericho Brown is the recipient of a Whiting Writers Award and fellowships from the Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study at Harvard University and the National Endowment for the Arts. His poems have appeared in The New Republic, The New Yorker, and The Best American Poetry. His first book, Please (New Issues 2008), won the American Book Award, and his second book, The New Testament (Copper Canyon 2014), won the Anisfield-Wolf Book Award and was named one of the best books of the year by Library Journal, Coldfront, and the Academy of American Poets. He is an associate professor in English and creative writing at Emory University in Atlanta.

“25 Years of Men’s Studies: A panel and discussion about roots and branches in our field”

Robert Heasley, Mark Justad, Vicki Sommer

The field of men’s studies has roots in the feminist movement and a history of challenges that include defining the field, representation of the subject, and integration into the academy. Men’s Studies has advanced to be an interdisciplinary area of study, representing a diverse range of interests in the critical examination and “meaning” of men and masculinities as these are influenced by culture and social forces, represented in literature, religion and the arts and informed by science in such fields as medicine and psychology. Join us for an overview of the field in historical perspective and a lively discussion by participants about their own historic and recent experiences and implications for the future of the field.

The AMSA conference is an energizing space that offers many opportunities for active intellectual engagement with colleagues. We also recognize and value the importance of taking time for self-care and introspection. In this regard, we are pleased to offer a 1-hour meditation session facilitated by Jeff Cohen, an AMSA member who has been practicing in Vipassana and Bompu/Gedo Zen traditions for over ten years. Whether you are a seasoned practitioner, complete beginner or somewhere in between, please join us in taking some time to “just breathe.” The session will begin with a brief overview of postures. This will be followed by a 30-minute guided meditation and end with a conversation about the role of meditative/contemplative practices in our personal and professional lives.

Participants will meet near the Museum Store, which is just inside the Frankel Family Wing entrance on South State Street.
2017 AMSA Banquet, Frankel Award, & Keynote Address
7:00 pm – 9:00 pm
Ross School of Business Executive Center, Colloquium Room, 6th Floor

*Open Bar Available from 7:00-8:00 pm

*Please use the 701 Tappan Ave entrance. Upon entering the building, you will walk towards the Starbucks and use the elevators right located right behind it. Please take the elevators up to the 6th floor and turn right to enter the Colloquium Room.
